Full of fun, practical games and activities accompanied by charming cartoons for children aged 7 to 13 with dyslexia, this book makes learning easy and entertaining. Written by a dyslexic tutor for dyslexic students, the tips are embedded in first-hand experience and will inspire and motivate any reader to aim high. Playing games is a great way for kids to develop their focusing and attention skills and to become more mindful. This card deck helps parents, caregivers, and teachers cultivate these qualities at home or in a school setting. The games develop what Susan Kaiser Greenland calls the "new A, B, C's" for learning and for a happy and successful life: Attention, Balance, and Compassion. In a playful way, the games introduce kids to breathing practices and techniques for developing focus, concentration, and sensory awareness, and identifying and self-regulating emotions, among other skills. They include "anchor" games that develop concentration; visualization games that encourage kindness and focus; analytical games that cultivate clear thinking; and awareness games that develop all of these qualities and give greater insight into ourselves, others, and relationships. The deck contains 55 5X7 illustrated cards, each devoted to one game or activity, and comes in a sturdy, beautifully designed box.

Indoor games for kids. * Keep your kids amused with fun indoor games.

We all know that car rides and road trips can be boring at times; however, there are literally hundreds of different fun games that you can play in the car.

As a child, I ended up being in a car with my parents and sisters, often for hours at a time. With that being said, we invented tons of games to play. These games are not only fun, but most of them can be played with virtually no materials at all. Most of the car ride games in this ebook use a point system, so you can even combine multiple games that use the same point system to develop an overall score.

These are literally the perfect games to play on a road trip, whether you are traveling with kids or adults!

Parents and caregivers often seek ways to stimulate their little learners, but don't know where to start.

While many conveniences have come our way in the digital age, none has made the process of guiding children through their years of growth and development any quicker, easier or less complex.

If your family is like mine, time with everyone together is becoming more and more difficult. We all have crazy schedules, and it's easy to put family time aside for soccer games, school assignments, meetings, chores, and other obligations. Now that some of my children have gone away to college, I realize how fleeting that family time can be, and that there is no substitute for time having fun together, laughing and learning. If you can set aside just one evening a week, with no other purpose than being together, your family will be greatly enriched. You don't need to plan anything fancy. An easy game, or even just some conversation starters over dinner, is enough to build happy memories. However, sometimes it's hard to think of something to do that works for all age groups and engages everyone. That is the purpose of this book. Included here are some of my family's favorite activities, from silly road trip word games to service projects to cooking contests. Organized by season, these ideas have been tested many times over and continue to bring my family many hours of fun. We play the If/Then game on birthdays, and Thanksgiving wouldn't be the same if we weren't drawing on paper plates on our heads. I hope these ideas help you plan your own family time and bring you many happy memories as well. --from the Introduction

All Phone & Games: This story focuses on cyberbullying and highlights the corresponding emotions as the main character Newmon makes "doh" creations with fellow classmates Orion, Tilly, Robin, Grace and Yuri.
Body Chemistry: This story focuses on nutrition and touches upon why kids may still feel hungry even after they've consumed a big meal by following the adventure and conversation between Midori and Perla, a Cookie Monster and a few friends.
Newmon: This story focuses on bullying and follows Newmon as he unsuccessfully and forcefully interacts with his classmates Sky and Izumi, who ultimately embrace Newmon and teach valuable lessons on friendship and sharing.

Primary school children need to become fluent in the times tables, able to recall and apply them rapidly and accurately. This book provides stimulating and imaginative games to make the process of learning the times tables both effective and fun. The first half of the book contains games specifically aimed at teaching the 2, 5 and 10 times tables. The second half contains games appropriate for any of the times tables. These games are subdivided into three groups: Games for learning each table in sequence Games to test pupils' memories and thinking skills as they try to identify the table they are working on Games to teach children the different factors that can make up each answer. The games require minimal preparation and ensure that all children gain a firm understanding of their times tables and will be able to recall them quickly and easily.
