Doing well with money isn't necessarily about what you know. It's about how you behave. And behavior is hard to teach, even to really smart people. Money—investing, personal finance, and business decisions—is typically taught as a math-based field, where data and formulas tell us exactly what to do. But in the real world people don't make financial decisions on a spreadsheet. They make them at the dinner table, or in a meeting room, where personal history, your own unique view of the world, ego, pride, marketing, and odd incentives are scrambled together. In The Psychology of Money, award-winning author Morgan Housel shares 19 short stories exploring the strange ways people think about money and teaches you how to make better sense of one of life's most important topics.

"This is that rarity, a useful book."--Warren Buffett Howard Marks, the chairman and cofounder of Oaktree Capital Management, is renowned for his insightful assessments of market opportunity and risk. After four decades spent ascending to the top of the investment management profession, he is today sought out by the world's leading value investors, and his client memos brim with insightful commentary and a time-tested, fundamental philosophy. Now for the first time, all readers can benefit from Marks's wisdom, concentrated into a single volume that speaks to both the amateur and seasoned investor. Informed by a lifetime of experience and study, The Most Important Thing explains the keys to successful investment and the pitfalls that can destroy capital or ruin a career. Utilizing passages from his memos to illustrate his ideas, Marks teaches by example, detailing the development of an investment philosophy that fully acknowledges the complexities of investing and the perils of the financial world. Brilliantly applying insight to today's volatile markets, Marks offers a volume that is part memoir, part creed, with a number of broad takeaways. Marks expounds on such concepts as "second-level thinking," the price/value relationship, patient opportunism, and defensive investing. Frankly and honestly assessing his own decisions--and occasional missteps--he provides valuable lessons for critical thinking, risk assessment, and investment strategy. Encouraging investors to be "contrarian," Marks wisely judges market cycles and achieves returns through aggressive yet measured action. Which element is the most essential? Successful investing requires thoughtful attention to many separate aspects, and each of Marks's subjects proves to be the most important thing.

Fact: Most people do not beat the market. This book was written to change that statistic and skew the odds of success in your favor. There are many reasons why most people fail to achieve their investment goals but the one common denominator is that most people follow the crowd and are doing the same thing as everyone else. This book introduces and sheds light on a new school of thought, coined by the author, titled Psychological Analysis (PA) for investing/trading in capital markets. Conventional wisdom tells us that there are two primary schools of thought: fundamental and technical analysis. How many times have you seen a market (or stock) with "poor" fundamentals and/or technicals go up--or "great" fundamentals and/or technicals go down? Happens all the time--clearly something is missing. PA fills that void. After studying every major economic and market cycle going back to the 3rd century, Adam coined the term Psychological Analysis for capital markets. His research found that the one constant throughout every major boom and bust in history has been psychology. The truth is human nature never changes. If you walk into a crowded theater anywhere in the world (or at any point in history or in the future) and yell FIRE! The reaction will be the same--the crowd will panic and flee. The same is true for how people react to markets (stocks, bonds, currencies, commodities, real-estate, tulips, etc). Bubbles and bursts happen all over the world, they always have and always will. History is littered with countless booms/busts from different centuries, cultures, religions, race, languages, markets (tulips, real-estate, stocks,etc), just to name a few. This evidence clearly illustrates that human nature doesn't change and that there are more factors that influence price than just fundamental or technical analysis. Fear and greed are the two primary emotions that drive markets and are the primary driver for major market moves in history--up and down. Adam introduces this third school of thought and shows you what is missing in the investing world.
